

John de Hulley and Richard de Withington

John de Hulley sued Richard de Withington for an account for the time they were bailiffs of Macclesfield hundred, Richard being the receiver of the lord king's moneys. Richard did not appear, and his pledges were amerced: after that the matter disappears from the record.

21:142: 12 November 1308

m'ie.xij.d'.

Joh'es de Holey op. se versus Ric'm de Withyngton' de pl'ito compoti de tempe quo ip'i simul fu'unt balliui Hundr'i de Macclesfeld'. & idem Ric'us extitit receptor denarioꝝ d'ni Reg^s sibi in ex^actis ad Leuandu' lib'atis. Et p^rd'cm no' ven'; Et p^rceptu' fuit vic', q'd venire fac^ret eu' hic ad hu'c ad reddendu' inde compotu' &c'. Et vic' modo mandat q'd p^rd'cus Ric'us manucapt' est p^r Will'm de Glasbrok & Ric'm del Heth' de Aldrelegh'. i'o ip'i in m'ia. Et p^rcept' e' vic'; q'd distr' eu' p^r om'es t^ras & cat' &c'. Et q'd de exit' &c'. Et q'd h'eat corp^s ei^s ad p^rx'm Com' &c'.